GOODS ARE IN FAIR SHAPE

The work of clearing the basement of the wrecked Hall building of water was begun yesterday morning when George Paris set up a gasoline pumping plant, which was run all day. The clearing away of the debris about the engine and dynamo was carried on until the latter was taken out not badly injured. The gasoline tank was found intact under the sidewalk.

The work of salvage was carried on all day, much stock which was badly damaged being found. Investigation made shows that the shelves filled with pipe fittings in the basement were not even broken by the fall of the floor upon them, and the supposition is that their contents are intact. Only recently there had been put on the shelves a carload of fittings representing an investment of about $7,000, which would mean a considerable amount of salvage in itself. The same is thought to be true of the stock of carriage and machine bolts.

The work of taking out the goods is going on under the direction of the insurance adjuster, an accounting being kept for his guidance, although the loss of the firm being so much greater than the insurance, all the stock which is recovered will be the property of the corporation. The insurance companies are making every arrangement to settle the loss at once so that there will be no delay in the insured getting the use of the money to which they are entitled.

The work of straightening out the stock of Lewers & Cooke goes on in the same way. In the new store room shelving is being prepared for the carrying of a fair stock at once, there being already in the room many sorts of shelf goods. The mass of the similar stock in the old building is being found worthless, but there is some which will be salable. It is the opinion of the members of the firm that two months will elapse before the old store room will be in shape for occupancy. A new roof will have to be put on the building and a new upper floor laid. In addition there will be much time lost in cleaning out the evidences of the fire. The insurance adjuster is hard at work and the losses will be paid as soon as possible.

LOOKING FOR A CHARRED SKELETON

The Result of a Joke About a Find on Hall's Corner.

A wild rumor to the effect that a skeleton had been found in the ruins of the Hall building excited the people on the streets yesterday afternoon. It spread with rapidity, and people hurried from all directions to bombard the workmen at the ruins, and each other, with questions as to the circumstances, descriptions and probable identity of the alleged remains.

Failing to find satisfactory information from these sources, the crowd rushed to the two Fort street undertakers, at a suggestion that the skeleton had been taken to the undertaker for embalming.

However, both Henry Williams and Mrs. Ed Williams, the respective proprietors of the two establishments, denied any knowledge of the skeleton, and after much telephoning to the suburbs, to the great excitement of the folks at home, the down town agitation subsided, the people beginning to realize that they had been bilked out of a real startling sensation. Had there been a skeleton to be discovered about that time, it would have made a great hit, but none appeared, and the people, feeling foolish, went about their business.

Meanwhile, "Remington" Harrison, who has a certain reputation as a practical joker, stood in the doorway of his typewriter establishment and held his sides while he laughed. It was no doubt a very funny thing to observe people who ought to have been attending to their business running wildly about with the professional street loafers, all in quest of a mythical skeleton that Mr. Harrison himself, and he only, knew had never existed.

"Remington" was discovered in his paroxysms of laughter by a skeleton hunter who had already begun to feel foolish, and upon asking the mirth-convinced joker why he laughed, the skeleton hunter nearly fell dead when Mr. Harrison replied: "Why, about half an hour ago I told somebody that a skeleton key had been unearthed in the burned ruins, and look what a storm in a teapot we have got! Of course, I may have said 'key' under my breath, and emphasized 'skeleton' unduly, but I don't see what the town has gone wild about."

And he continued to laugh, while the foolish and disappointed crowd got back to business.

DELEGATE WILCOX'S LATEST.

He Seeks Fame by Giving a Patent Medicine Testimonial.

The Hawaiian Delegate is adding distinction to his name and that of the Islands by getting his picture into patent medicine ads. Anyone at all well known can have his photograph put in a thousand American papers in return for a testimonial for a certain medicine, and the game has been worked among feeble-minded or egotistic politicians at Washington or elsewhere to the great advantage of a patent remedy concern. Wilcox's picture entitled "Congressman R. W. Wilcox" heads a testimonial as follows:

"I have used Opodidock for dyspepsia and I cheerfully give you this testimonial. Am satisfied if it is used properly it will be of great benefit to our people. I can conscientiously recommend it to anyone who is suffering with stomach or catarrhal troubles."—R. W. Wilcox.

Delay in the treatment of bronchitis, which generally begins with a chill, hot feverish attacks and a feeling of exhaustion, develops into very serious complications. Pain-Killer taken in hot water, as well as rubbing the chest with it clear, will speedily cure. Avoid substitutes, there is but one Pain-Killer, Perry Davis'. Price 25 cents and 50 cents.
